Helping to integrate the Armenian and Azeri minorities into Georgian society

The objective of the project is the increased civic activity of the Armenian and Azeri minorities in Georgia through their active participation in society, policy and decision making process, focusing at rural and regional development. The project helps to empower the Armenian and Azeri minorities to participate in the political, social, economic and cultural life, thus helping to achieve their equal rights. JTI will organize trainings and mentor programme on possibilities for diversifying the rural life among the Armenians in Javakheti. An integration plan for the Azeri minorities to participate in Georgian society will be drafted and the representatives of the minority trained to overcome barriers related to communicating with (local) authorities
